31st Annual Generalists in Medical Education Conference

November 5-6, 2010

Dear Colleagues:

The 31st Annual Generalists in Medical Education conference will be held November 5-6, 2010 at the Hotel Palomar in Washington, DC. The mission of the Generalists in Medical Education is to promote innovation and collaboration in medical education.

The theme of the 2010 conference is Promoting Engaged Learning and Scholarship Across the Medical Education Continuum. Our 2010 conference theme seeks to promote the scholarship of teaching, learning, and research in medical education.

We are pleased to announce that our keynote speaker will be William McGaghie, PhD. Dr. McGaghie is the Jacob R. Suker, MD, Professor of Medical Education, Professor of Preventive Medicine, and Director of Evaluation for the Northwestern University Clinical and Translational Sciences (NUCATS) Institute at the Northwestern University Feinberg School of Medicine in Chicago, Illinois. His keynote address is titled Advances in Simulation-Based Medical Education and Research.

The program along with meeting registration and hotel information is available on our website (<http://www.thegeneralists.org>). Early registration deadline is October 4, 2010.

See you in Washington DC!

Sincerely,
